The benefits of membership

Provide hope and help to people affected by mental illness

Mental illness can cost a person their family, friends, job, education, physical health, and in some cases, their life.

CMHA's 14 branches throughout BC are here to help support people with mental illness and their families on their journey to recovery. We believe everyone deserves a home, a job and a friend.

Across BC, CMHA provides help and hope through direct services such as:

- Supported housing and shelters
- Support groups and crisis lines
- Social and recreational opportunities
- Volunteer opportunities, skills training and employment services
- Educational supports and bursaries
- Clubhouses, which provide a stable, respectful and supportive gathering place for recovery
- Social enterprise programs, which assist people with mental illness to gain skills, productivity and income by running their own businesses

➤ Mental illness will affect 1 in 5 Canadians directly—that's almost 900,000 in BC

Promote mental health for all—and prevent mental illness

Many people with mental illness never receive the treatment and support they need because they are unaware of the signs of mental illness and treatments available, or are ashamed to seek help.

CMHA helps battle misconceptions, empower people to seek help, and raise broad awareness around maintaining good mental health through:

- Public education events, displays, publications, and resource libraries
- Province-wide events such as Mental Health Week in May, Ride Don't Hide events in June and Beyond the Blues events in October
- Community education and training such as Living Life to the Full, Bounce Back™, Confident Parents: Thriving Kids, Mental Health Works and Mental Health First Aid
